Healthy Start Initiative: Eliminating Disparities in Perinatal Health (General Population)

The purpose of this program is to address significant disparities in Perinatal health including disparities experienced by Hispanics, American Indians, African-Americans, Asian/Pacific Islanders, and immigrant populations. Differences in perinatal health indicators may occur by virtue of education, age of mother, income, disability, or living in rural/isolated areas. To address disparities and the factors contributing to them in these indicators, it is anticipated that the proposed scope of project services will cover the pregnancy and interconception phases for women and infants residing in the proposed project area. In order to promote longer interconception periods and prevent relapses of risk behaviors, the woman and infant are to be followed through the infant's second year of life and/or two years following delivery.

Deadline: January 27, 2012

Regional Genetic and Newborn Screening Services Collaboratives: Heritable Disorders Program

Each RC will serve effectively as a regional center to: expand and improve newborn screening and genetic services for individuals affected or at risk for heritable disorders and their families; translate genomic medicine into health care delivery systems; and assist states in strengthening their capacity to provide genomic information and services to the public. The RC will continue to undertake a regional approach to address the maldistribution of genetic resources, with focus on reducing disparities among different socioeconomic, racial, ethnic and rural groups. Strategies to address underserved populations include collaboration with other HRSA initiatives, such as MCHB Title V services and other MCHB programs for the hemoglobinopathies, hemophilia and autism, as well as community-based services, medical home implementation, transition for youth and young adults, and health insurance and financing. Eligible applicants include: (1) a state or a political subdivision of a state; (2) a consortium of two or more states or political subdivisions of states; (3) a territory; (4) a health facility or program operated by or pursuant to a contract with or grant from the Indian Health Service; or (5) any other entity with appropriate expertise in newborn screening, as determined by the Secretary. Applicants that fail to show that they are based within the identified region it will serve and be part of a collaborative network of public health program entities responsible for genetic and/or newborn screening and services in all of the states and U.S. territories within that region will not be considered. In addition, applicants must have significant familiarity and experience with multi-activities within the designated region that show communication and collaboration among: public health and community programs; genetic medicine, primary care and other subspecialty providers; genetic screening and testing laboratorians; and individuals at risk for or affected with heritable disorders and their families.

Research Grants for Preventing Violence and Violence Related Injury

The purposes of the NCIPC extramural violence prevention research program are to: •Build the scientific base for the prevention of violence by helping to expand and advance our understanding of the primary prevention of interpersonal and self-directed violence. •Encourage professionals from a wide spectrum of disciplines of epidemiology, behavioral and social sciences, medicine, biostatistics, public health, health economics, law, and criminal justice to perform research in order to prevent violence more effectively. •Encourage investigators to propose research that involves the development and testing of primary prevention strategies as well as research on methods to enhance the adoption and maintenance of effective strategies among individuals, organizations, or communities. NCIPC is soliciting investigator-initiated research that will expand and advance the understanding of how best to disseminate and implement evidence-based strategies, programs, and policies. NCIPC is also soliciting research in areas where less is known about what works to prevent violence such as teen dating violence, intimate partner violence, sexual violence, and suicidal behavior.
